

The Agency Revenue Gap

How AI Voice Agents Turn Your Clients' Missed Calls
Into Closed Deals

The Problem Your Clients Won't Mention

You did your job. The campaigns ran and the leads came in. Then your client's team let them sit. Across industries, 73% of leads are never contacted at all, and 44% of sales reps never follow up even once.

When the bookings do not appear, the client does not blame their own follow-up. They blame your ads.

The fastest way to lose a client is not bad ads. It is great ads with no follow-up.

Why Speed Decides Everything

The research is unambiguous. Responding within five minutes instead of thirty makes a lead 21 times more likely to qualify (MIT and InsideSales). Calling within the first minute lifts conversion by 391% (Velocify). After five minutes, the odds of qualifying fall by 80%. Yet 55% of companies take five or more days to respond.

Your clients' sales teams are human. They work nine to five. Leads do not. Between 35 and 50% of enquiries arrive after hours and sit untouched until the next business day, by which point a faster competitor has already called.

What AI Voice Agents Actually Do

An AI voice agent is a phone-based assistant that calls or answers a lead instantly, qualifies them in a natural conversation, and books the appointment, 24 hours a day, every day. It replaces the missed call, the three-day callback, and the sorry-I-forgot follow-up. It does not replace the human sales call, the relationship, or the close.

1. A lead submits a form from Google Ads, Facebook, or the website.
2. The AI voice agent calls within 60 seconds.
3. It qualifies the lead on budget, timeline, and needs through natural conversation.
4. The qualified lead is booked into your client's calendar, and an SMS confirmation goes out.

Built on SVA's production methodology: minimum viable qualification, one question per turn, natural voice.

Real Results: EasyStart Homes

EasyStart Homes, an Australian home builder, has run SVA voice agents live since January 2026. With an outbound cadence and no speed-to-lead, it books 17 to 25% of leads, month after month, with zero human caller time. The pilot booked 10 of 60 leads, a 16.7% rate.

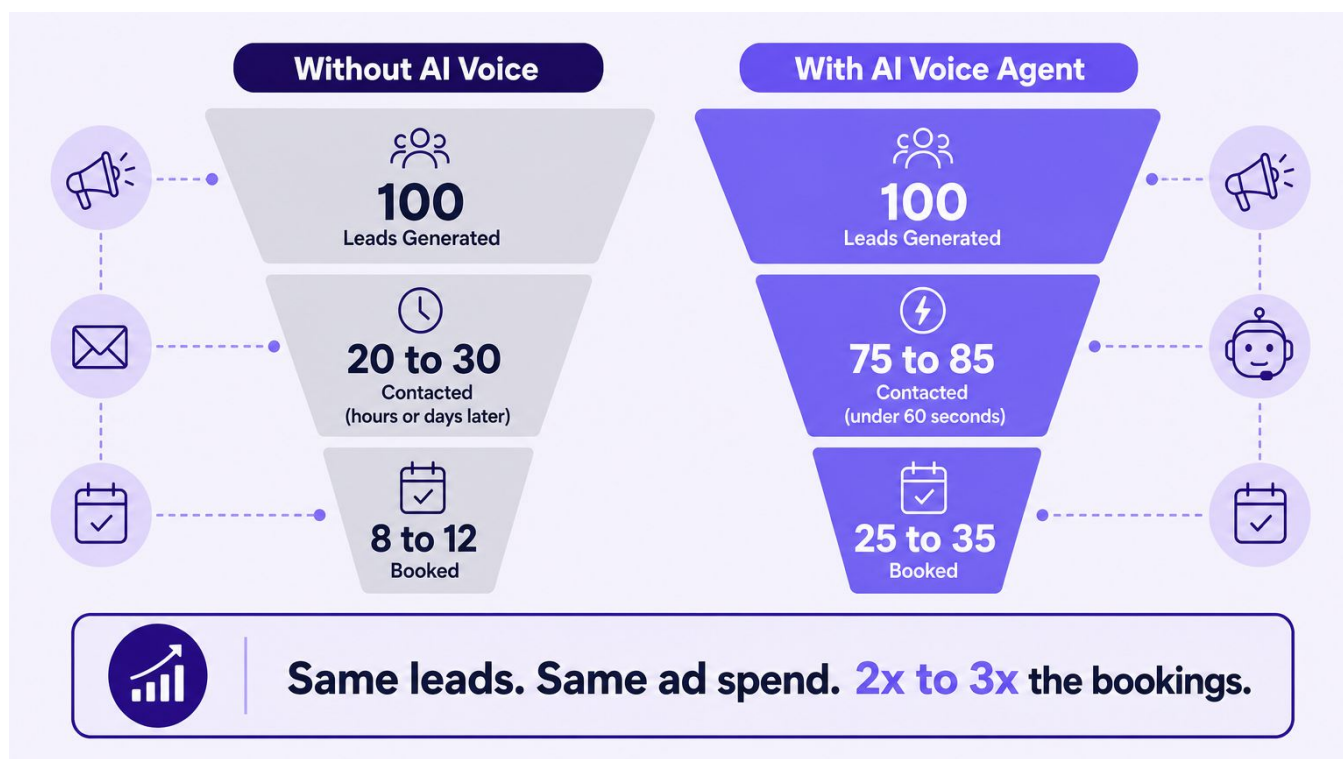

16.7% pilot booking rate (60 leads)

17-25% sustained live rate, 6+ months

Zero human caller hours required

Today the leads are called in batches, hours later. Add an instant sixty-second callback and the model points to 28 to 40%, eight to eleven extra bookings a month from the same leads.

Opportunity One: Fix the Follow-Up

Position AI voice as the missing layer between the leads you generate and the sales your client closes. A Google Ads client spending $5,000 a month generates around 100 leads. Without instant follow-up, 20 to 30 get contacted and 8 to 12 get booked. With an AI voice agent, 75 to 85 are contacted within 60 seconds and 25 to 35 get booked, two to three times the result from the same spend.

This is also how you keep clients. PPC agencies churn at 49% a year, the highest of any agency type, and the reason owners cite most often is that the leads were not good, which usually means nobody called them fast enough. Bolt a measurable booking service onto the campaign and both the result and the retention change. Retainer relationships already hold on 2.3 times better than project work; this is what makes them stick.

The conversation shifts from 'did you get me leads?' to 'look how many booked appointments you got.'

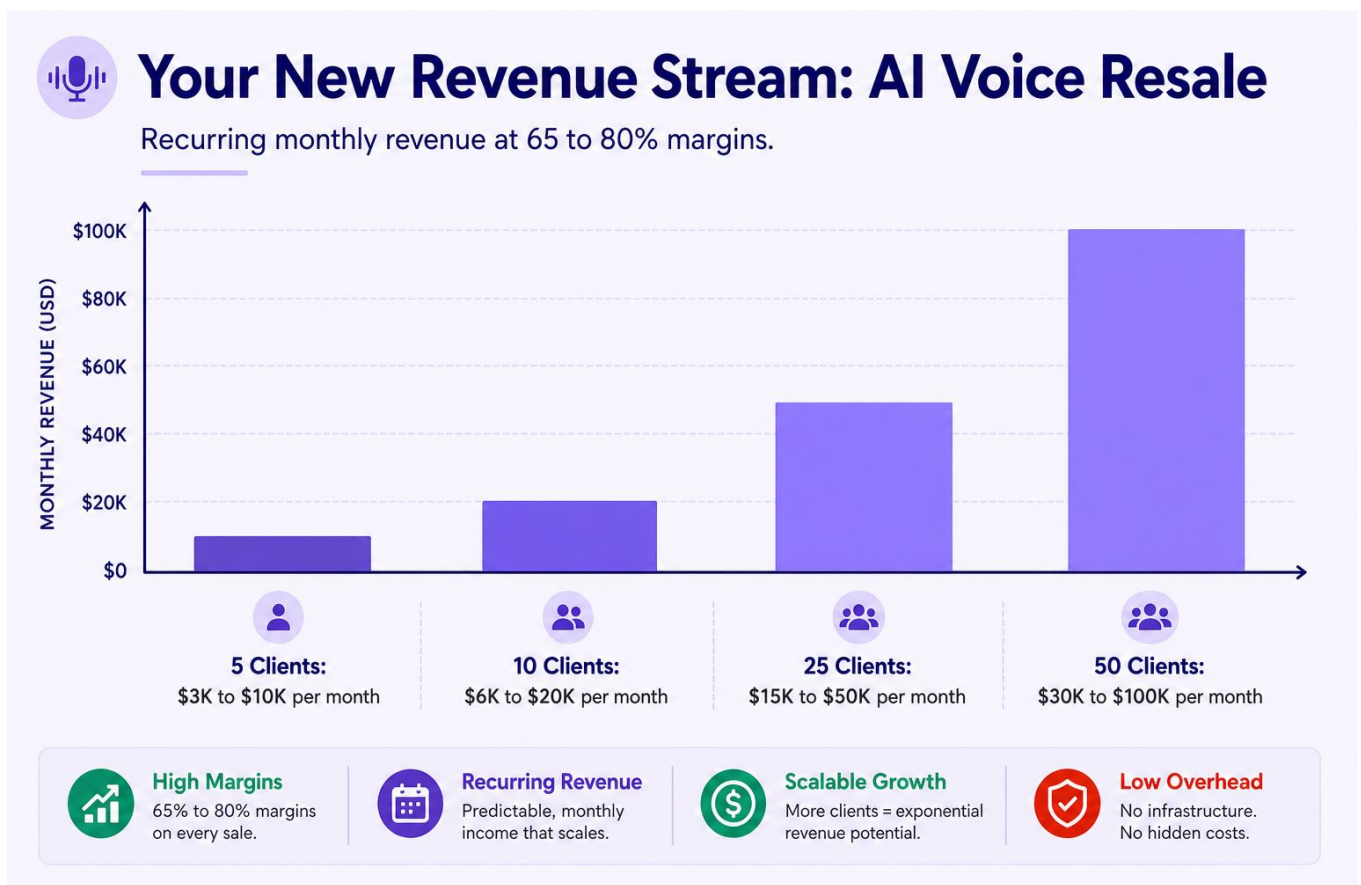

Per 100 leads / mo	Without AI Voice	With AI Voice
Contacted in 5 minutes	20 to 30	75 to 85
Qualified bookings	8 to 12	25 to 35
Client ROAS	Baseline	2x to 2.5x
Retention probability	75%	90% plus

Opportunity Two: A New Revenue Stream

Offer AI voice under your own brand. SVA builds, deploys, and supports it; you own the client and set the price. Typical agency margin is $500 to $2,000 per client each month at 65 to 80% margins. The market is moving fast: AI voice search interest is up 640% year on year, and the category is projected to grow from $2.5 billion to as much as $10 billion by 2028.

Add it now and you are an early mover. In twelve to eighteen months it is table stakes. Because the revenue is recurring, every client you add compounds your monthly total permanently.

Which Clients Need This Most

The best fit is any client with real lead volume, time-sensitive enquiries, and gaps in after-hours coverage. The sweet spot is 30 or more leads a month, a slow current response time, and no after-hours cover. Start with these.

The vertical matters less than the signal. Ask a prospect how quickly they call a new lead back, what happens to enquiries after 5pm, and what one booked appointment is worth to them. When the answers are eventually, they wait until morning, and thousands of dollars, you have found a client who needs this yesterday. Those three questions qualify a client faster than any pitch.

If a client takes more than five minutes to respond, there is a gap worth closing.

Client Type	Why They Need It
Home services	High call volume and after-hours emergencies
Real estate and building	Proven results and high-value bookings
Medical and dental	Appointment booking and after-hours triage
Legal (injury, family)	Time-sensitive leads, high case value
Automotive	Test-drive and service scheduling
Financial services	High-value qualification, regulated
Trades and construction	Quote requests and site visits

How the Partnership Works

There are three ways to work with SVA, depending on how hands-on you want to be. The referral path is the simplest: send clients our way and earn a commission, with no technical involvement. The reseller path suits most agencies. The strategic path is for larger groups that want a co-branded solution and deeper integration.

At every tier, SVA delivers the voice agent design, build, and deployment to the Vapi Bible standard, ongoing monitoring and optimisation, integrations with the major CRMs and calendars, and ready-made pitch decks and sales collateral for your team. The production work stays with us.

You bring what you already own: the client relationship, the inside knowledge of their campaigns and lead flow, and first-line communication. In the reseller model you also handle billing and account management, and you keep the margin on every client you add.

Most agencies choose Reseller.

Tier	You Do	SVA Does
Referral	Refer clients, earn commission	Everything else, end to end
Reseller	Sell, onboard, manage, set pricing	Build and maintain, white-labelled
Strategic	Co-brand, integrate your stack	Dedicated manager, volume pricing
